Dinosaurs were reptiles that lived during the period of Earth's history called the Mesozoic Era, which is also known as the Age of Reptiles. The first dinosaurs appeared more than 200 million years ago. For many millions of years, they dominated the land until about 65 million years ago, when they died out suddenly.

The word "dinosaurs" comes from two Greek words, meaning "terrible lizards". The biggest ones weighed more than ten times as much as an elephant and nearly equalled the size of most modern-day whales. The famous kinds of dinosaurs reached 80 to 90 feet in length. Not all dinosaurs were giants – some were actually not larger than a chicken.

Scientists still do not know what caused dinosaurs to disappear. One theory involves a change in the Earth's climate. It is believed that temperatures dropped significantly towards the end of the Cretaceous Period. Too large to hibernate, and not having fur or feathers for protection, it is possible that the climate became too chilly for dinosaurs. In contrast, other species, such as birds, had protection and were able to survive.
